BLOOMFIELD, N. J., APRIL 15, 1882. DIPHTHERIA. - Dr. Franklin Staples, of Winona, Minn., after extended correspondence with physicians in most of the counties of his State, has published a report on diplitheria, in which he classes the disease as contagious and infectious, and demonthat it is on the increase, a fact due, in his opinion, to failure on the part of physicisms in recognizing its self-propagating properties; to want of systematic nursing of patients suffering from the disease; to incomplete disinfection of the premises attacked; and last but not least, to the frequest intercourse of convalescents with healthy persons. He maintains that strict regulations, rigidly enforced, are the only means adequate to cut short its career, and since individual power is unable to cope with it, urges that every city and town shall devise efficient sanitary laws, and let them be enforced by efficient medical officers, who shall also make it their duty to instruct the people in sanitary rules. To guard against contamination, he believes that filth, whether from dirty rooms, soiled clothing, defective drains and cesspools, ill-ventilated rooms, poisonous inodorous gases, etc., vite the disease; that the apartments set apart for the patient should be divested of all furniture, carpets, curtains, and fabrics of any kind not absolutely required; that discharges from the nose, mouth and bowels should be carefully collected and destroyed. and that all personal clothing, bed linen, etc. should be thoroughly disinfected before being sent to the general wash. In case of death, all clothing and unimportant articles should be burnt, the body should be immediately disinfected, and put into its coffin, which should be kept permanently closed. There should be no public funeral.

He prefers disinfection by chlorine gas, which is to be set free in the room. Ventilation for a number of hours should then be insisted upon. Precautions falling short of preventing the spread of the infection .-

STRENGTH OF MANGANESE BRONZE.-The twin screws of the new English ironclad Colossus, launched recently, are of manganese bronze. This metal was adopted in place of gun metal, as first ordered, after a series of comparative tests of the two metals made in the presence of a representative of the Admiralty at the works of the contractors for the engines. In these test bars of both metals, one inch square, were placed on supports twelve inches apart, and first subjected to a steady pressure applied in the middle of the bars, and afterward to impact by a weight of fifty pounds falling from a height of five feet. With a steady pressure the gun metal bars slipped between the supports or broke with a strain of 27 cwt., while the manganese bronze bars required 54 cwt. to break them. Tested by impact the gun metal bars broke with from seven to eight blows, while it took from thirteen to seven. te-m blows to break the manganese bronze old master. bars. The ultimate bend of the latter was also in both cases more than that of the gun metal, thus showing fully double the strength with superior toughness. The advalitages claimed for manganese bronze over gun metal are-first, a considerable saving of actual weight of machinery; and second, that it enables a thinner and consequently a better blade to be made, offering less resistance to the water and equaling in strength the gun metal blade of greater dimen-

Tus novel and interesting process annonneed some time since, in France, by which the wool on sheepskins may be transformed into velvet, is likely, it would seem, to prove of industrial importance. Up to the present time, sheepskins, tanned with the wool on, have only been used for mats, linings of coats, &c., and the wool, not having been subjected to any preparation, is always matted or curled. Observing that the innumerable fibres are naturally disposed in the most regular and perfect order, peculiarly fit for velveting, an ingenious chemist conceived the idea of cleansing the skin and wool of all impurities, and of so preparing and dressing them that the bairs would be , with lighted candles in their hands.

METHODIST CHURCH TRUSTEES. ELECTION OF THOSE FOR THE ENSUING TEAR-A NEW LAMP-POST TO BE SECURED. The annual election of seven trustees of the Park Methodist Church took place on Wednesday evening of this week. Only a small pastor, Rev. Dr. Lowrie, was called upon to preside as chairman and F. H. Carl acted as secretary. The first business in order was the reading of the Treasurer's report, which was accepted and ordered on file. The new pastor then in a few well-chosen words congratulated the Board of Trustees of the previous year and the congregation upon the success that had attended them during the year. The election of seven trustees for the eusning year was then taken up. It was ordered that the vote be taken by ballot Mr. Abel Baker stated that in consideration of the efficient services rendered the Church by the former Trustees he was constrained to move that they again be nominated and elected. During this discussion a pastor, neighbor to Dr. Taylor, said: We are not all of us Dr. Taylors. He is full of sweetness and power and strength. BAGE ADVICE TO A MICHIGAN WIND.

A Michigan man who has a patent wind will went down to Tennessee last fall to see what he could do among the farmers of that State. Reaching a town in the central part of the State, he went to a dealer in agricultural implements and stated his desire to erect his machine and call attention to it.

Well; it can done, I guess," was the re-"But how had I best proceed ?" "Well, you kin put her up over on the hill thar. I don't know who owns the ground, but if you treat the crowd I guess no one will object." "Very well." "Next Tuesday is market day, and there'll be heaps of folks in town. You want to be around early and treat the crowd." "Set the old thing going and ask the boys over to drink something."

"Just so." some explanations, of course, for it will be new to most of 'em. But don't talk too long. Make it about ten minutes, and then treat the crowd.

"If you have to talk any more, tell 'en there's another drink shead."

"If the old man Jones comes in with hi boys there'll be a row in the crowd. They shoot on sight. Keep your eye peeled, and if you see any signs of a row, ask the whole crowd out to drink." "Yes, but-"

"Look out for dog fights. If one takes place you can't hold the boys a minute. Keep your eyes on the canines. If you see a yaller purp begin to bristle up ask the crowd to step over and moisten." "Yes, but by that time the whole crowd will be drupk," protested the agent. "Sartin it will, and that's what you want, of course. That will give you a chance to skip out and take your life along with you, and if you make a stop augwhere within a hundred miles I'll wend the windsaill by freight-provided there's anything left to served the desend! Nothing like knowing how to handle a Teupeaced crowd, my friend. Did you ask me out to take sunthin' ?" - Detroit

SCULPTORM STORIES.

Free Press.

Sculptors who execute busts often hear droll things said. Here are two anecdotes and covered taken from a French newspaper. A sculp- largest tree brated personage, in whose biography it was mentioned that he regarded architecture as a very secondary art. The son of this personage visited the artist's fatudio for the purpose of examining the bust, when, after was practice considering it with the air of a compositeur, the How de he said : "Could you not express more clearly his contempt for architecture ?"

Another time it was the busband of a beloved deceased wife who came to see her bust. "Pray, study it well," wild the artist. "It is only in the clay, and I can alter it. The widower looked at it with the most tender interest. "It is her very self !" be exclaimed; " her large nose-the sign of goodness !" Then bursting into tears, he exclaimed : "She was so good ! Make the nose a little larger !" The above seems capped by the personal recollection of a correspondent, who writes as follows : "Quite tifty years ago for it was at the time that the exhibition of the Royal Academy was held in Homernet House-I was paying a visit to the room devoted to sculpture. There was but three or four persons in the room, and the silence was complete, until it was broken by the exclamation of a girl of four teen, who was evidently under the care of a motherly sort of a woman of about fifty years of age, 'Oh, there's Lord It- I' eried the young girl, thow tike !' pointing to the best, which was in truth an excellent representation of a well known states man. Take I' retoried the elder personnes in a tone of ineffable scorn. Like! Why don't I know his face as well as I know yours, and isn't his nose always twitching!"

MORNING AND EVENING WATER.

-Chambers's Journal,

A certain amount of water is pecessary to carry on the functions of the animal economy. During the season of active perspiration, the quantity is considerable. When shall the water be taken into the system? It may be introduced during the day, when thirst requires; but it is a capital practice to introduce a quantity on first rising in the morning, and on going to bed at night. Thousands of dyspeptics have derived signal relief by drinking one, two, or three tumblers of water on rising in the morning, and on going to bed at night. I have sometimes thought, on hearing the testimony of these dyspeptics in regard to the influence of cold water thus taken into the stomach, that, perhaps, of all baths, this is the best.

The number of persons suffering from beart-burn or water-brash is very large. In a ladies' seminary I asked how many Bookach suffered more or less with heart burn, and Quinsy more than half the hands went up. It is a very common affection, and is the introduction to graver forms of indigestion. It Tooth, should not be treated with either indifference or alkalies, but by the observance of the following suggestions. Avoid soupe; drink nothing at your meals; say "No thank your supper .- Dr. Dio Louis, in Golden . Rule.

KITTY STATEMAN'S DRESS. I used, when the empire was flourishing, to meet the late Countess of Essex at the house of a common friend. She was then a very stout dowager, not nearly so old-look. ing as she actually was, and foud of droning in flaming colors. I never saw skirts and trains of more vivid reds, oranges and purples than hers were. Like all short women, she was food of everying garments. The girth of her arm above the elbow was formidable. But sim was not aware of this, and wore at dinners and reception sleeves that were scarouly visible. In her youth she was plump; toward thirty she was a round dot, but county; at sev. enty she looked like a stort glanters who
